10 toes in standing on business song: The Family Business W R Maxwell, 2024-11-15 It is a Family Business unlike any other. American women, and Dallas women in particular, have a reputation for being beautiful and sexy. Nice figures, good hair, and great skin. For the last 20 years, Lamar and Travis, two trust fund brothers, have been cashing in on this reputation and selling female sex-slaves on the dark web providing well-trained slaves to wealthy men from Marrakesh to Timbuktu. Men looking for just the right woman to satisfy their particular sexual kink. A few at a time, now and then, of course, but the total has grown to over 100 women. The authorities can do little to prevent the abductions, and since there is no body or ransom demand, there is very little evidence of a crime. In the words of the Dallas PD, 'people disappear all the time without leaving a forwarding address.' This unique family enterprise requires women be scrupulously trained, and for that, Lamar and Travis have the perfect training facility in a posh old-money neighborhood and three floors below ground. Included in the elaborate set-up is a fully-equipped dungeon with seven training stations and every sex toy, tool, apparatus and device imaginable to prepare these females for the life that awaits them.

Get the urge to ride into the desert and face down steely-eyed desperados to the refrain of Ennio Morricone's The Good, the Bad and the Ugly? Does Hans Zimmer's Pirates of the Caribbean score have you talking like Jack Sparrow? From the Westerns of the 1960s to current blockbusters, composers for both film and television have faced new challenges--evermore elaborate sound design, temp tracks, test audiences and working with companies that invest in film score recordings all have led to creative sparks, as well as frustrations.
