coaching for small business: Business Coaching and Training Noah Daniels, 2014-10-24 The economy goes up and down. Right now, it's not doing so well. In fact, most would say it has tanked. Managing your costs is important to your growth and survival, and when the economy is performing poorly, it is even more of a challenge. Experts say that 58% of companies have a shortfall in leaders and many companies are actually cutting their development budget as part of their cost cutting measures. Before you make that cut, you might want to think long and hard about whether that's the right choice for your business. When you take development away from the executives, it can be detrimental. Leading is actually special skill. A key leader can find a business coach a very helpful tool to navigate through the storm and continue to grow and prosper.

coaching for small business: Reflections From a Business Coach Keith Barton, 2008-12 Why would anyone want to coach businessmen and women who may be tired of their corporate careers or may just want to turn their hobby into a business? Why would anyone want to be a coach? I've asked myself these and other questions many times when I left the safe world of being a therapist where the rules of engagement are well prescribed. It's safer in being the expert whose job it is to listen and help reassure folks that they are not losers, that there's meaning in their lives, that all they need is to have a passion for life. The world of coaching is a different arena where coach and client are equal and the coaches job is to ask the right questions to get his or her clients to engage in a plan of action that hopefully will change their lives. My coaching style is non-directive, whereby my executive clients discuss their current project assignments and managerial approaches to staff recruitment, development, and retention. I use the following strategies to optimize executive growth to: Model executive development based on individual and company core values Create a visionary approach to problem-solving Establish accountability structures for change Encourage risk-taking behaviors that foster competition and growth Create new markets for your services and product Thus, coaching involves putting self aside and concentrating on the motivation of your client. The emphasis is on the relationship developed between coach and client where each participates in a process of change that holds the client's agenda using the expertise and experience of the coach. Whereas mentoring involves mirroring for your client what the skill might look like (intention), coaching offers a vision for your client that empowers and holds your client accountable. Success = accountability for change.

coaching for small business: How to Start a Life Coaching Business Maxwell Rotheray, The annual salary of a life coach can range from $28,034 to $251,068, according to Payscale's salary database. Your salary as a life coach will, however, depend on several factors, including: · Your chosen market – if you coach a top-level management cadre, you are likely to rake in more revenue. · Your location – if you serve a niche within a city such as New York, you are likely to charge a higher fee but the cost of operation may also be higher. · Your level of experience – if you are particularly sound professional and have an excellent delivery pattern, you are likely to charge more. · Your training and credentials – if you have been recommended and your coaching services have received approval from the industry body, your brand equity will give you leverage to charge more. The vast majority of life coaches' hourly rates fall within $75 and $200 per hour schooling a client, which doesn't usually include preparation time. When working on a retainer basis, however, coaches normally charge a client between $500 and $2,000 per calendar month. On the profit side, an ICF study of the Bureau of Labor Statistics shows that the average life coach earned $61,900 in 2015. This is considerably higher than the average annual wage of $36,200 in the same year. This book covers a comprehensive guide on how to generate over $300,000 annual salary as a life coach. We will take you through a step-by-step process of setting up a life-coaching business and building your brand successfully. If you are ready to start an exciting career as a life coach, then this book is for you.
