Introduction to the Huntsman Program

The Huntsman Program in International Studies and Business is designed for students who are interested in the intersection of global affairs and business practices. This distinguished program emphasizes a multidisciplinary approach, combining elements of economics, political science, and international relations with business fundamentals. Students benefit from a comprehensive education that prepares them for the challenges of a globalized economy.

One of the hallmarks of the Huntsman Program is its commitment to developing global citizens. The curriculum not only focuses on theoretical knowledge but also emphasizes practical skills that are essential for success in international contexts. Students are encouraged to engage with real-world issues and develop solutions that are applicable in various cultural and economic landscapes.

Moreover, the program's strong emphasis on language proficiency and cultural understanding ensures that graduates are well-equipped to navigate the complexities of international business environments. The Huntsman Program is ideal for those looking to make a significant impact in their careers while contributing to a more interconnected world.

Curriculum Overview

The curriculum of the Huntsman Program in International Studies and Business is designed to provide a robust foundation in both international studies and business practices. The program typically spans four years and includes a blend of core courses, electives, and specialized tracks.

Core Courses

Students are required to take core courses that cover essential topics in both fields. These courses include:

- Introduction to International Relations
- Global Business Environment
- International Economics
- Cross-Cultural Communication
- Business Ethics

These foundational courses ensure that students possess a comprehensive understanding of the global landscape and the factors that influence international business operations.

Electives and Specializations

In addition to core courses, students can choose from a variety of electives that allow them to tailor their education to their interests. Specializations may include:

- International Development
- Global Supply Chain Management
- International Marketing
- Foreign Policy Analysis

This flexibility enables students to pursue their passions while gaining expertise in specific areas of international studies and business.

Experiential Learning Opportunities

A key component of the Huntsman Program is its emphasis on experiential learning. The program offers numerous opportunities for students to apply their knowledge in real-world settings, enhancing their educational experience significantly.

Internships

Internships play a crucial role in the Huntsman Program. Students have the opportunity to participate in internships with leading companies and organizations around the globe. These internships allow students to gain hands-on experience and build professional networks, which are invaluable for future job placements.

Study Abroad Programs

Another critical aspect of experiential learning in the Huntsman Program is the study abroad component. Students are encouraged to immerse themselves in different cultures and gain firsthand experience of international business practices. The program offers various study abroad options, including semester-long exchanges and short-term faculty-led trips to locations such as Europe, Asia, and Latin America.

Capstone Projects

Capstone projects are significant elements of the Huntsman Program, where students work in teams to address real-world challenges faced by businesses or international organizations. These projects enable students to apply their academic knowledge while developing critical thinking and problem-solving skills.

Global Partnerships and Networking

The Huntsman Program prides itself on its strong global partnerships with universities, businesses, and international organizations. These partnerships enhance the educational experience by providing students with access to resources, expertise, and networking opportunities.

International Collaborations

The program collaborates with various international institutions, allowing students to benefit from diverse perspectives and educational practices. These collaborations often include joint research projects, exchange programs, and co-hosted events, which enrich students' learning experiences.

Networking Opportunities

Networking is a vital component of the Huntsman Program. Students have access to a vast alumni network, which includes professionals working in various sectors around the world. Networking events, guest lectures, and mentorship programs provide students with the chance to connect with industry leaders and gain insights into potential career paths.

Career Outcomes and Employment Opportunities

Graduates of the Huntsman Program are well-prepared for successful careers in various fields, including international business, diplomacy, and development. The program's strong emphasis on practical skills and global awareness positions graduates as competitive candidates in the job market.

Employment Sectors

Huntsman graduates find employment in diverse sectors such as:

- Multinational Corporations
- Government Agencies
- Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs)
- Consulting Firms
- International Organizations (e.g., United Nations)

These sectors value the interdisciplinary training and global perspective that Huntsman graduates bring to the table.

Career Support Services

The Huntsman School of Business offers comprehensive career support services to assist students in their job search. Services include resume workshops, interview preparation, and job placement assistance, ensuring that graduates are well-equipped to enter the workforce.

huntsman program in international studies and business: Rethinking Undergraduate Business Education Anne Colby, Thomas Ehrlich, William M. Sullivan, Jonathan R. Dolle, 2011-04-20 Business is the largest undergraduate major in the United States and still growing. This reality, along with the immense power of the business sector and its significance for national and global well-being, makes quality education critical not only for the students themselves but also for the public good. The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching's national study of undergraduate business education found that most undergraduate programs are too narrow, failing to challenge students to question assumptions, think creatively, or understand the place of business in larger institutional contexts. Rethinking Undergraduate Business Education examines these limitations and describes the efforts of a diverse set of institutions to address them by integrating the best elements of liberal arts learning with business curriculum to help students develop wise, ethically grounded professional judgment.

huntzman program in international studies and business: The Insider's Guide to the Colleges, 2013 Yale Daily News, 2025-09-23 The Insider's Guide to the Colleges has been, for 39 years, the most relied-upon resource for high school students looking for honest reports on colleges from their fellow students. Having interviewed hundreds of their peers on more than 330 campuses and by getting the inside scoop on everything from the nightlife and professors to the newest dorms and wildest student organizations, the reporters at the Yale Daily News have created the most candid college guide available. In addition to the wellrounded profiles, this edition has been updated to include: • Essential statistics for every school, from acceptance rates to popular majors • A College Finder to help students zero in on the perfect school • All new FYI sections with student opinions and outrageous off-the-cuff advice The Insider's Guide to the Colleges cuts through the glossy brochures to uncover the things that matter most to students, and by staying on top of trends, it gives both students and parents the straightforward information they need to choose the school that's right for them.

huntzman program in international studies and business: Dying Abroad Osman Balkan, 2023-04-06 On any given day, the remains of countless deceased migrants are shipped around the world to be buried in ancestral soils. Others are laid to rest in countries of settlement, sometimes in cemeteries established for religious and ethnic minorities, where available. For immigrants and their descendants, perennial questions about the meaning of home and homeland take on a particular gravitas in death. When the boundaries of a nation and its members are contested, burial decisions are political acts. Building on multi-sited fieldwork in Berlin and Istanbul – where the author worked as an undertaker – Dying Abroad offers a moving and powerful account of migrants' end-of-life dilemmas, vividly illustrating how they are connected to ongoing political struggles over the stakes of citizenship, belonging, and collective identity in contemporary Europe.

huntzman program in international studies and business: Advancing Comparative Area

Studies Ariel I. Ahram, Patrick Köllner, Rudra Sil, 2025 Advancing Comparative Area Studies responds to questions about the analytic range of the comparative area studies (CAS) field and the organizational challenges it must navigate. The chapters demonstrate that CAS can cover a broad range of scholarship beyond cross-national comparisons, including interpretive work across different sites, sub-national comparisons at the sectoral level, and inter-regional comparisons addressing topics such as the behavior of regional powers. The volume also considers how the institutional architecture of research universities can be adapted so as to better support cross-regional research and collaboration without sacrificing the quality of area expertise.

huntzman program in international studies and business: Comparative Area Studies

Ariel Ira Ahram, Patrick Köllner, Rudra Sil, 2018 In the post-World War II era, the emergence of 'area studies' marked a signal development in the social sciences. As the social sciences evolved methodologically, however, many dismissed area studies as favoring narrow description over general theory. Still, area studies continues to play a key, if unacknowledged, role in bringing new data, new theories, and valuable policy-relevant insights to social sciences. In Comparative Area Studies, three leading figures in the field have gathered an international group of scholars in a volume that promises to be a landmark in a resurgent field. The book upholds two basic convictions: that intensive regional research remains indispensable to the social sciences and that this research needs to employ comparative referents from other regions to demonstrate its broader relevance. Comparative Area Studies (CAS) combines the context-specific insights from traditional area studies and the logic of cross- and inter-regional empirical research. This first book devoted to CAS explores methodological rationales and illustrative applications to demonstrate how area-based expertise can be fruitfully integrated with cutting-edge comparative analytical frameworks.

huntsman program in international studies and business: The Economics of Inequality, Poverty, and Discrimination in the 21st Century Robert S. Rycroft, 2013-03-07 Leading scholars examine the conflicting paradigms of affluence and destitution in the United States—as well as other free societies—and discuss the influence of education, race, and status on economic mobility. While recent catastrophic events in New Orleans and Haiti may have magnified issues of social inequity, leaders have debated over poverty and discrimination for decades. Are the poor disadvantaged by the institutions of society or by the choices they make? Through two insightful volumes, the author examines differing academic and political perspectives to help shed light on the causes of poverty and inequality; the role that gender, race, age, or sexual preference plays in determining opportunity; and the effectiveness of current social and economic policies in balancing the inequity among disparate groups. The Economics of Inequality, Poverty, and Discrimination in the 21st Century consists of 2 volumes containing 32 papers divided into 5 categories: measurement, inequality and mobility, institutions and choices, demographic groups and discrimination, and policy. The papers—written by economists, sociologists, philosophers and lawyers—deal with the extent of inequality in the United States and how it compares to other countries, and the newly emerging evidence on the relationship between inequality and mobility within a society.

Anticorruption Efforts in Asia Cheng Chen, Meredith L. Weiss, 2019-12-01 Examines the political dynamics behind anticorruption efforts in Asia. Focusing on Northeast and Southeast Asia—regions notable for political diversity, difficult environments for fighting corruption, and multifarious anticorruption outcomes—this book examines the political dynamics behind anticorruption efforts there. The contributors present case studies of the Philippines, Indonesia, Taiwan, Vietnam, Thailand, South Korea, and China that explore the varying roles anticorruption efforts play in solidifying or disputing democratic and nondemocratic institutions and legitimacy, as well as the broader political and economic contexts that gave rise to these efforts. Whether motivated by private interests, party loyalty, or political institutionalization, political actors shape the trajectories of anticorruption efforts by challenging their opponents over what constitutes corruption, what enables corruption, and how to combat corruption. Arguing that anticorruption strategy may be associated more closely with shifting bases of regime legitimacy than with regime type, the book sheds light on the divergent ways in which states control and respond to political elites and society at large, and on how citizens from across strata understand and engage with their states. “This book features excellent case studies rich in empirical detail, which provide robust pictures of the complex political contexts of anticorruption campaigns.” — Roselyn Hsueh, author of China’s Regulatory State: A New Strategy for Globalization
