Understanding Fictitious Business Names

A fictitious business name, often referred to as a "DBA" (Doing Business As), is a name that a business operates under that is different from its legally registered name. In California, any business entity, whether a sole proprietorship, partnership, or corporation, must register a fictitious business name if it intends to conduct business under a name that does not include the owner's last name or is not the business's legal name. This requirement is designed to protect consumers by providing transparency about who is behind a business.

The fictitious business name serves various purposes, including marketing and branding. A well-chosen name can effectively communicate the nature of the business and attract customers. However, it is crucial to ensure that the name is not already in use, as this could lead to legal complications and confusion in the marketplace.
