Overview of AR 670-1

AR 670-1 is the Army Regulation that governs the wear and appearance of Army uniforms and insignia. It sets the standards for how soldiers should present themselves in both garrison and field environments. The regulation ensures uniformity, discipline, and professionalism throughout the Army. It covers everything from the types of uniforms authorized to the specifics of grooming and accessory use. Staying updated with AR 670-1 is mandatory for all soldiers to avoid uniform violations and maintain the Army's image.

Purpose and Scope of the Regulation

The primary purpose of AR 670-1 is to establish clear and uniform standards for the wear and appearance of Army uniforms across all ranks and components. It applies to active duty, Reserve, and National Guard soldiers. The regulation includes provisions for daily wear, ceremonial occasions, and combat environments. It also addresses the proper display of awards, decorations, and insignia to preserve the Army's traditions and honors.

Updates and Revisions

AR 670-1 is periodically updated to reflect changes in Army policy and societal trends. Recent revisions have incorporated allowances for religious accommodations, new grooming standards, and updated uniform items. Soldiers must stay informed about these changes to remain compliant. Official communication channels and training sessions often provide the latest guidance on uniform standards.

Uniform Components and Standards

The AR 670-1 regulation details the authorized uniform types and their proper wear. Uniform components vary depending on the duty status, environment, and mission requirements. Common uniform categories include the Army Combat Uniform (ACU), the Army Service Uniform (ASU), and physical fitness uniforms. Each uniform has specific requirements for fit, condition, and combination of components.

Army Combat Uniform (ACU)

The ACU is the standard uniform for field and combat situations. It consists of a camouflage-patterned coat and trousers, a moisture-wicking T-shirt, and authorized headgear. AR 670-1 specifies the correct wear of the ACU, including proper patch placement, roll sleeves guidelines, and footwear compatibility. Soldiers must ensure the ACU is clean, serviceable, and worn according to regulation.

Army Service Uniform (ASU)

The ASU is a more formal uniform used for ceremonies and official functions. It includes a coat, trousers or skirt, shirt, necktie or neck tab, and appropriate headgear. AR 670-1 outlines the precise placement of rank insignia, ribbons, and badges on the ASU. Uniform components must be tailored and pressed, with all accessories correctly positioned to present a professional appearance.

Physical Fitness Uniform (PFU)

The PFU is authorized for physical training activities. It includes moisture-wicking shirts, shorts or pants, and running shoes. AR 670-1 provides standards for PFU wear, such as approved colors and logo placement. The PFU must be worn as intended, without unauthorized modifications or additions.

Grooming and Appearance Requirements

AR 670-1 includes detailed grooming standards to ensure uniformity and professionalism among soldiers. These standards cover haircuts, facial hair, cosmetics, and tattoos. Proper grooming supports the Army's image and promotes discipline within the ranks.

Hair and Facial Hair Standards

Soldiers must maintain neat and conservative hairstyles that do not interfere with uniform wear or protective equipment. AR 670-1 specifies maximum hair length and bulk for both male and female soldiers. Facial hair, including beards and mustaches, is generally prohibited except for authorized medical or religious accommodations. Mustaches must be neatly trimmed and not extend beyond the corners of the mouth.

Tattoos and Body Art

AR 670-1 regulates the visibility and content of tattoos and body art. Tattoos that are extremist, indecent, sexist, or racist are strictly prohibited. Visible tattoos on the head, face, neck, and hands are limited. Soldiers must ensure their tattoos comply with these standards to avoid disciplinary action.

Cosmetics and Jewelry

Makeup, if worn, must be conservative and complement the uniform's professional appearance. Jewelry is allowed in moderation, with restrictions on size and type to prevent safety hazards or uniform violations. AR 670-1 outlines specific guidelines for earrings, necklaces, and bracelets to maintain a uniform look.

Insignia and Badges Placement

Correct placement of insignia and badges is a critical aspect of AR 670-1 uniform answers. The regulation provides exact locations for rank, unit patches, badges, and awards on all uniform types. Proper placement ensures uniformity and honors the soldier's achievements and affiliations.

Rank Insignia Placement

Rank insignia must appear on designated areas depending on the uniform type. For example, on the ACU, rank is displayed on the chest or collar, while on the ASU, it appears on the shoulder epaulets or lapels. Soldiers must ensure their rank is clean, properly secured, and visible at all times.

Unit Patches and Identification Badges

Unit patches are worn on the left shoulder of the ACU, with certain exceptions for combat patches on the right shoulder. Identification badges, such as the Combat Infantryman Badge or Medical Badge, have specific locations on the ASU and other dress uniforms. AR 670-1 mandates the correct placement and authorized wear of these items.

Awards and Decorations

Medals, ribbons, and other decorations are worn according to the regulation's guidelines. On the ASU, ribbons are displayed above the left breast pocket, while medals are worn during formal events. Soldiers must ensure all awards are properly aligned, spaced, and polished to maintain a sharp appearance.

Authorized Accessories and Prohibited Items

AR 670-1 specifies which accessories are authorized for wear with Army uniforms and which items are prohibited. This includes headgear, belts, footwear, and other uniform components. Adhering to these standards is essential for a professional appearance and operational effectiveness.

Headgear

Authorized headgear includes patrol caps, berets, helmets, and service caps, depending on the uniform and duty status. AR 670-1 describes the proper wear of each type, including positioning, insignia, and condition. Headgear must be clean, properly fitted, and worn during required situations.

Belts and Footwear

Belts must be Army-approved, matching the uniform type, and worn with the appropriate buckle. Footwear standards vary by uniform but generally require polished, serviceable shoes or boots. Unauthorized footwear, such as civilian-style shoes or boots with excessive decoration, is prohibited.

Prohibited Items

Items not authorized by AR 670-1 include non-regulation jewelry, unauthorized patches or badges, and clothing modifications that alter the uniform's appearance. Soldiers must avoid these items to prevent uniform violations and maintain compliance with Army standards.

Common Questions and Clarifications

Many soldiers seek clear AR 670-1 uniform answers to common questions about uniform wear and appearance. This section addresses frequent concerns and provides practical guidance to ensure compliance.

Can Soldiers Wear Tattoos Visible While in Uniform?

Tattoos are allowed if they meet AR 670-1's content and location restrictions. Visible tattoos on the face, neck, or hands are limited, and any extremist or offensive tattoos are prohibited. Soldiers should review the regulation carefully or consult their command for clarification.

Are Religious Accommodations Allowed for Grooming?

Yes, AR 670-1 permits religious accommodations for grooming and appearance, such as wearing beards or head coverings, provided they do not interfere with safety or mission requirements. Soldiers must request approval through their chain of command.

How Should Soldiers Maintain Uniform Items?

Uniforms must be kept clean, pressed, and serviceable at all times. Soldiers are responsible for regular inspection and maintenance of their uniform components to meet AR 670-1 standards. Proper care extends the uniform's lifespan and supports a professional image.

- Review AR 670-1 regularly for updates
- Follow precise insignia placement guidelines
- Maintain grooming standards as outlined
- Use only authorized uniform accessories
- Seek command clarification for any uncertainties
