billions and billions review: Review of the Adequacy of the Fund's Precautionary Balances

International Monetary, International Monetary Fund. Finance Dept., 2024-04-04 On March 20, 2024, the IMF's Executive Board reviewed the adequacy of the Fund's precautionary balances. The review took place somewhat ahead of the standard two-year cycle, in view of the imminent attainment of the current indicative medium-term indicative target of SDR 25 billion for the first time. Precautionary balances comprise the Fund's general and special reserves. They are a key element of the IMF's multi-layered framework for managing financial risks. Precautionary balances provide a buffer to protect the Fund against potential losses, resulting from credit, income, and other financial risks. The review was based on the assessment framework established in 2010, which uses an indicative range for precautionary balances, linked to a forward-looking measure of total IMF non-concessional credit, to guide decisions on adjusting the medium-term target over time. While financial risks remain high, they are broadly unchanged from the last review, taking into account the further accumulation of reserves and strengthening of some risk mitigants. Against this background, Executive Directors broadly supported staff's proposal to retain the current medium-term target of SDR 25 billion and increase the minimum floor from SDR 15 billion to SDR 20 billion. The Board also supported maintaining the biennial review cycle, with earlier reviews if warranted by developments that could materially affect the adequacy of precautionary balances.

African Dept., 2025-03-24 The fifth review of a three-year Extended Credit Facility (ECF) arrangement (SDR 324 million, 200 percent of quota) was concluded on July 10, 2024. Resilient activity in the non-hydrocarbon sector supported economic growth in 2024, while oil production continued to surprise on the downside. Inflationary pressures abated in 2024 on the back of moderating import costs, but the current account weakened driven by softening terms of trade, especially in the hydrocarbon sector. Meanwhile, low execution of capital and social spending and stronger-than-expected tax and hydrocarbon revenues improved the non-hydrocarbon primary deficit in the first half of 2024 by 2.4 percent of non-hydrocarbon GDP compared to the fifth ECF review (CR 24/251), with the annual projection set at 9 percent of non-hydrocarbon GDP. However, liquidity pressures heightened in 2024, and this, combined with expected large repayments of domestic debt falling due in 2025–26, prompted the authorities to initiate in October 2024 a domestic debt reprofiling operation, partially postponing the amortization of government treasuries beyond 2029. Public debt continued to be assessed as sustainable but “in distress” due to recurrent instances of new external arrears, which are expected to be cleared before the board date, and uncertainty about the timeline to resolve domestic arrears.
