

how teachers evaluate writing

how teachers evaluate writing is a critical aspect of education that involves multiple strategies and criteria to assess students' written communication skills effectively. Teachers use systematic approaches to measure various components such as grammar, coherence, creativity, and content relevance. Understanding these evaluation methods is essential for both educators aiming to refine their assessment techniques and students seeking to improve their writing abilities. This article explores the key elements teachers consider when grading writing assignments, the tools and rubrics they employ, and the challenges they encounter during evaluation. Additionally, it highlights best practices that promote fair and comprehensive assessments. The following sections detail how teachers evaluate writing through structured criteria, the role of rubrics, feedback mechanisms, and the importance of contextual factors in the evaluation process.

- Criteria for Evaluating Writing
- Use of Rubrics and Assessment Tools
- Providing Effective Feedback
- Challenges in Writing Evaluation
- Contextual Influences on Writing Assessment

Criteria for Evaluating Writing

One of the foundational aspects of how teachers evaluate writing is the establishment of clear criteria to judge the quality of student work. These criteria serve as benchmarks that guide educators in identifying strengths and areas needing improvement. Commonly, teachers assess writing based on content accuracy, organization, grammar, vocabulary use, and adherence to the assignment prompt.

Content and Idea Development

Content evaluation focuses on the relevance, originality, and depth of ideas presented in the writing. Teachers examine whether the student has thoroughly addressed the topic and provided sufficient evidence or examples to support their arguments or narrative. Strong content reflects critical thinking and an understanding of the subject matter.

Organization and Structure

Effective writing must demonstrate logical organization and clarity. Teachers look for a clear introduction, coherent body paragraphs, and a concise conclusion. Transitions between ideas are important to ensure the writing flows smoothly, making it easier for readers to follow the argument.

or storyline.

Grammar, Mechanics, and Syntax

Proper grammar, punctuation, spelling, and sentence structure are essential components that teachers evaluate to determine writing proficiency. Errors in these areas can distract readers and undermine the writer's credibility. Attention to detail in mechanics is often a key factor in grading.

Vocabulary and Style

Teachers assess vocabulary usage to gauge the writer's language skills and ability to choose appropriate words for tone and audience. Varied sentence structures and stylistic elements can enhance the readability and impact of writing. A mature and contextually suitable style is often rewarded in evaluations.

Adherence to Assignment Guidelines

Following the assignment's instructions, including format, length, and topic requirements, is a crucial part of how teachers evaluate writing. Compliance reflects a student's ability to understand and execute task demands, which is essential in academic and professional contexts.

Use of Rubrics and Assessment Tools

Rubrics are widely used by teachers to standardize the evaluation process and provide transparent grading criteria. These tools break down writing into measurable components, assigning points or levels of achievement for each area.

Advantages of Using Rubrics

Rubrics offer several benefits in writing assessment. They ensure consistency and fairness by applying the same standards across all student submissions. Additionally, rubrics help communicate expectations clearly to students, which can guide their writing efforts.

Types of Rubrics

Teachers may use analytic rubrics, which assess individual writing components separately, or holistic rubrics, which give an overall score based on general impressions. The choice depends on the educational context and goals of the assignment.

Digital Tools and Software

In addition to traditional rubrics, many educators incorporate digital tools that assist in evaluating writing. These tools can check for grammar errors, plagiarism, and provide readability scores, complementing the teacher's judgment and streamlining the evaluation process.

Providing Effective Feedback

Feedback is a vital element of how teachers evaluate writing because it supports student learning and improvement. Effective feedback is specific, constructive, and focused on both strengths and areas for development.

Types of Feedback

Teachers provide various forms of feedback, including written comments, in-text annotations, and verbal discussions. Each method serves to clarify errors, suggest revisions, and encourage deeper thinking about writing choices.

Encouraging Self-Assessment and Revision

Promoting self-assessment allows students to critically analyze their own writing, fostering autonomy and reflection. Teachers often encourage multiple drafts and revisions based on feedback, which enhances writing skills over time.

Balancing Positive and Constructive Comments

Effective feedback balances praise for well-executed elements with guidance on improvement. This approach motivates students by acknowledging their efforts while clearly outlining how to enhance their work.

Challenges in Writing Evaluation

Despite established criteria and tools, how teachers evaluate writing involves several challenges that can affect the accuracy and fairness of assessments.

Subjectivity and Bias

Writing evaluation can be subjective, as personal preferences and interpretations of quality may influence grading. Teachers must be aware of potential biases related to writing style, topic preferences, or student background to maintain objectivity.

Time Constraints

Evaluating writing thoroughly requires significant time investment. Large class sizes and multiple assignments can limit the depth of analysis teachers can provide for each piece.

Diverse Student Abilities

Teachers often encounter a wide range of writing skills within a single class. Adapting evaluation standards to fairly assess students at different proficiency levels while maintaining consistent expectations poses a considerable challenge.

Contextual Influences on Writing Assessment

The context in which writing is produced and evaluated greatly impacts how teachers assess student work. Factors such as grade level, subject area, and cultural background play important roles.

Grade Level Expectations

Evaluation criteria vary according to students' developmental stages. What is expected from elementary students differs from the standards applied to high school or college writers, reflecting their evolving language and cognitive skills.

Subject-Specific Writing Conventions

Different academic disciplines require distinct writing styles and formats. For example, scientific writing emphasizes clarity and data accuracy, while literature essays focus on analysis and interpretation. Teachers adjust their evaluations accordingly.

Cultural and Linguistic Diversity

Teachers consider students' cultural and linguistic backgrounds to provide equitable assessments. Understanding the challenges faced by English language learners or students from diverse cultural traditions helps in creating inclusive evaluation practices.

Purpose and Audience

The intended purpose of writing and its target audience influence evaluation criteria. Persuasive writing, creative storytelling, and research reports each have specific goals that teachers account for when grading.

Best Practices in Writing Evaluation

To effectively evaluate student writing, educators implement several best practices that enhance fairness, clarity, and instructional value.

1. Establish Clear Rubrics: Define and share explicit criteria to guide both teaching and assessment.
2. Use Multiple Assessment Methods: Combine quantitative scores with qualitative feedback for comprehensive evaluation.
3. Encourage Revision: Allow students to improve their work based on feedback to foster learning.
4. Maintain Objectivity: Regularly reflect on personal biases and apply consistent standards.
5. Adapt to Student Needs: Differentiate assessments to accommodate varying skill levels and backgrounds.
6. Integrate Technology: Utilize digital tools to support accuracy and efficiency in evaluation.

Frequently Asked Questions

What are the common criteria teachers use to evaluate student writing?

Teachers commonly evaluate student writing based on criteria such as clarity, organization, grammar and mechanics, content accuracy, creativity, coherence, and adherence to the assignment prompt.

How do teachers assess writing for different grade levels?

Teachers tailor their evaluation criteria to the developmental stage of students, focusing on basic grammar and sentence structure for younger students, while emphasizing critical thinking, argument development, and research skills for older students.

What role does rubrics play in evaluating writing?

Rubrics provide a clear, standardized framework for assessing writing by outlining specific expectations and performance levels, which helps ensure consistent and objective grading while giving students clear guidance.

How do teachers incorporate peer review in writing evaluation?

Teachers often use peer review to engage students in providing constructive feedback to each other, which helps students develop critical reading and editing skills and allows teachers to gather additional perspectives on the writing.

In what ways do teachers evaluate the writing process versus the final product?

Some teachers assess the writing process by evaluating drafts, revisions, and reflections to encourage improvement and learning, while others focus primarily on the quality and effectiveness of the final written piece.

How do technology tools assist teachers in evaluating writing?

Technology tools like plagiarism checkers, grammar and style software, and digital portfolios assist teachers by providing additional insights into writing quality, originality, and development over time, making evaluation more efficient and comprehensive.

How important is feedback in the writing evaluation process?

Feedback is crucial as it provides students with specific guidance on strengths and areas for improvement, fostering learning and encouraging revision, which ultimately improves writing skills.

How do teachers handle subjective aspects like creativity and voice in writing evaluation?

Teachers recognize that creativity and voice are subjective but important; they evaluate these aspects by looking for originality, personal expression, and engagement, often using qualitative comments alongside rubric scores.

What challenges do teachers face when evaluating writing and how do they address them?

Challenges include subjective bias, varying student skill levels, and time constraints. Teachers address these by using clear rubrics, differentiating instruction, providing formative feedback, and sometimes using peer and self-assessment strategies.

Additional Resources

1. Assessing Writing: A Critical Sourcebook

This comprehensive collection of essays explores various approaches to evaluating student writing. It covers theoretical perspectives, practical assessment techniques, and the implications of standardized testing. The book is ideal for educators seeking to deepen their understanding of writing assessment in diverse educational contexts.

2. Classroom Assessment Techniques: A Handbook for College Teachers

Although not solely focused on writing, this handbook provides numerous strategies for evaluating student work, including writing assignments. It offers practical tips for creating effective assessments and using feedback to enhance student learning. Teachers can adapt many of the techniques to improve their writing evaluation practices.

3. Writing Assessment and Instruction for English Language Learners

This book addresses the unique challenges of assessing writing in English language learners (ELLs). It provides research-based methods for evaluating writing while supporting language development. Educators will find useful guidelines for fair and effective assessment tailored to diverse student populations.

4. Feedback in Second Language Writing: Contexts and Issues

Focusing on the role of feedback in writing evaluation, this book examines how teachers can effectively respond to student writing. It discusses various feedback methods, including peer review and automated tools, emphasizing their impact on writing improvement. The text is valuable for instructors working with second language writers.

5. Rubrics for Assessing Students' Writing

This practical guide helps teachers develop clear, consistent rubrics to evaluate writing assignments. It explains how rubrics can improve grading reliability and provide meaningful feedback. The book includes sample rubrics and tips for aligning assessment criteria with learning objectives.

6. Assessing Writing in the Disciplines: Multiple Perspectives

This volume explores how writing assessment varies across academic disciplines. Contributors discuss discipline-specific criteria and the challenges of evaluating writing in specialized fields. It is an essential resource for educators interested in tailoring writing assessment to subject-area conventions.

7. Writing Assessment and Evaluation: Theory and Practice

Combining theory with classroom application, this text offers a thorough overview of writing assessment principles. It covers formative and summative assessments, portfolio evaluation, and standardized testing. Teachers will gain insights into designing assessments that support student writing development.

8. Peer Review and Writing Assessment in the Classroom

This book highlights the benefits and challenges of incorporating peer review into writing assessment. It provides strategies for training students to give constructive feedback and for integrating peer evaluations into grading. The work supports collaborative learning and enhances student engagement in the writing process.

9. Technology and Writing Assessment: Tools for the 21st Century

Exploring the intersection of technology and writing evaluation, this book examines digital tools that assist in assessing student writing. Topics include automated scoring systems, online portfolios, and computer-mediated feedback. Educators interested in modernizing their assessment practices will find practical advice and case studies.

How Teachers Evaluate Writing

Find other PDF articles:

<https://explore.gcts.edu/gacor1-09/pdf?dataid=nGD38-3157&title=cnn-10-quiz.pdf>

how teachers evaluate writing: Assigning, Responding, Evaluating Edward M. White, Cassie A. Wright, 2015-05-08 The advent and innovation of computer technologies for composing has dramatically and rapidly changed the classroom environment and even the curriculum with which writing teachers now find themselves charged to teach writing. Assigning, Responding, Evaluating: A Writing Teacher's Guide is designed to help the teacher create writing assignments, evaluate student writing, and respond to that writing in a consistent and explainable way. But it also suggests ways that writing programs can take advantage of our new digital environment and meet the increasing demands for accountability, without decreasing the role or creativity of teachers, or the importance of writing instruction to college education.

how teachers evaluate writing: Teaching and Evaluating Writing in the Age of Computers and High-Stakes Testing Carl Whithaus, 2005-04-27 Teaching and Evaluating Writing in the Age of Computers and High-Stakes Testing offers a theoretical framework, case studies and methods for evaluating student writing. By examining issues in writing assessment the book discovers four situated techniques of authentic assessment that are already in use at a number of locales throughout the US.

how teachers evaluate writing: Assessing the Teaching of Writing Amy E. Dayton, 2015-03-15 Although fraught with politics and other perils, teacher evaluation can contribute in important, positive ways to faculty development at both the individual and the departmental levels. Yet the logistics of creating a valid assessment are complicated. Inconsistent methods, rater bias, and overreliance on student evaluation forms have proven problematic. The essays in Assessing the Teaching of Writing demonstrate constructive ways of evaluating teacher performance, taking into consideration the immense number of variables involved. Contributors to the volume examine a range of fundamental issues, including the political context of declining state funds in education; growing public critique of the professoriate and demands for accountability resulting from federal policy initiatives like No Child Left Behind; the increasing sophistication of assessment methods and technologies; and the continuing interest in the scholarship of teaching. The first section addresses concerns and advances in assessment methodologies, and the second takes a closer look at unique individual sites and models of assessment. Chapters collectively argue for viewing teacher assessment as a rhetorical practice. Fostering new ways of thinking about teacher evaluation, Assessing the Teaching of Writing will be of great interest not only to writing program administrators but also to those concerned with faculty development and teacher assessment outside the writing program.

how teachers evaluate writing: Conceptualizing, Designing, Implementing, and Evaluating Writing Interventions, 2023-10-20 This book takes a fresh look at the challenge of setting up educational writing intervention studies in authentic class contexts. In four sections, the book offers innovative approaches on how to conceptualize, design, implement, and evaluate writing interventions for research purposes. Hot topics in the field such as professional development for scaling up writing interventions, building research practice partnerships, implementation variation and fidelity, and response to intervention are addressed. To illustrate the proposed approaches for writing promotion, the book showcases a wide variety of writing interventions from around the world, ranging from single-participant designs to large-scale intervention studies in writing.

how teachers evaluate writing: Assigning, Responding, Evaluating Edward M. White, 2002-11 Assigning, Responding, Evaluating offers teaching faculty a new kind of support for the writing class. It is not a mere collection of tests and assignments, though it includes both, but is rather an evaluation guide based on writing and reading theory and integrally related to the teaching of writing. It is designed to help the teacher create writing assignments, evaluate student writing, and respond to that writing in a consistent and explainable way. Book jacket.

how teachers evaluate writing: Student Self-assessment Graham Foster, 1996

how teachers evaluate writing: Teaching Writing in the Content Areas Vicki Urquhart, Monette McIver, 2005 This book examines nearly 30 years of research to identify how teachers can incorporate writing instruction that helps students master the course content and improve their overall achievement. Building on the recommendations of the National Commission on Writing, authors Vicki Urquhart and Monette McIver introduce four critical issues teachers should address when they include writing in their content courses: Creating a positive environment for the feedback and guidance students need at various stages, including prewriting, drafting, revising, and editing; Monitoring and assessing how much students are learning through their writing; Choosing computer programs that best enhance the writing process; Strengthening their knowledge of course content and their own writing skills.

how teachers evaluate writing: Assessing the Teaching of Writing Amy E. Dayton, 2015-03-04 Although fraught with politics and other perils, teacher evaluation can contribute in important, positive ways to faculty development at both the individual and the departmental levels. Yet the logistics of creating a valid assessment are complicated. Inconsistent methods, rater bias, and overreliance on student evaluation forms have proven problematic. The essays in Assessing the Teaching of Writing demonstrate constructive ways of evaluating teacher performance, taking into consideration the immense number of variables involved. Contributors to the volume examine a range of fundamental issues, including the political context of declining state funds in education; growing public critique of the professoriate and demands for accountability resulting from federal policy initiatives like No Child Left Behind; the increasing sophistication of assessment methods and technologies; and the continuing interest in the scholarship of teaching. The first section addresses concerns and advances in assessment methodologies, and the second takes a closer look at unique individual sites and models of assessment. Chapters collectively argue for viewing teacher assessment as a rhetorical practice. Fostering new ways of thinking about teacher evaluation, Assessing the Teaching of Writing will be of great interest not only to writing program administrators but also to those concerned with faculty development and teacher assessment outside the writing program.

how teachers evaluate writing: Evaluating Children's Writing Suzanne Bratcher, Linda Ryan, 2003-09-12 Introduces statement from preface about application activities for a wide range of writing evaluation strategies elementary classroom teachers can use to determine a grade. Txtbk for undergrad. & graduate elementary language arts&writing methods courses how teachers evaluate writing: Understanding, Evaluating, and Conducting Second Language Writing Research Charlene Polio, Debra A. Friedman, 2016-11-18 Understanding, Evaluating, and Conducting Second Language Writing Research speaks to the rapidly growing area of second language writing by providing a uniquely balanced approach to L2 writing research. While other books favor either a qualitative or quantitative approach to second language acquisition (SLA) research, this text is comprehensive in scope and does not privilege one approach over the other, illuminating the strengths of each and the ways in which they might complement each other. It also provides equal weight to the cognitive and socio-cultural approaches to SLA. Containing an array of focal studies and suggestions for further reading, this text is the ideal resource for students beginning to conduct L2 writing research as well as for more experienced researchers who wish to expand their approach to conducting research.

how teachers evaluate writing: Evaluating Writing Charles Raymond Cooper, Lee Odell, 1999 Intended to guide writing teachers through the complexities of evaluation, the essays in this collection represent a variety of approaches to evaluation. The essays display, however, some common beliefs about what is fundamentally important to writing teachers' work--specifically, the need: to distinguish between grading and evaluation; to develop the ability to describe students' writing; to connect teaching and evaluation; and to continually reexamine assumptions and practices that guide evaluation. Following an introduction by the editors, the 17 essays and their authors are, as follows: (1) Assessing Thinking: Glimpsing a Mind at Work (Lee Odell); (2) What We Know about Genres, and How It Can Help Us Assign and Evaluate Writing (Charles R. Cooper); (3) Audience Considerations for Evaluating Writing (Phyllis Mentzell Ryder, Elizabeth Vander Lei, and Duane H. Roen); (4) Coaching Writing Development: Syntax Revisited, Options Explored (William Strong); (5) Cohesion and Coherence (Martha Kolln); (6) Assessing Portfolios (Sandra Murphy); (7) How to Read a Science Portfolio (Denise Stavis Levine); (8) Using Writing to Assess Mathematics Pedagogy and Students' Understanding (Richard S. Millman); (9) Evaluating Student Writing about History (Kathleen Medina); (10) Evaluating Students' Response Strategies in Writing about Literature (Richard W. Beach); (11) Evaluating the Writing of Culturally and Linguistically Diverse Students: The Case of the African American Vernacular English Speaker (Arnetha F. Ball); (12) Latino ESL Students and the Development of Writing Abilities (Guadalupe Valdes and Patricia Anloff Sanders); (13) Texts in Contexts: Understanding Chinese Students' English Compositions (Guanjun Cai); (14) Reflective Reading: Developing Thoughtful Ways To Respond to Students' Writing (Chris M. Anson); (15) Creating a Climate for Portfolios (Sandra Murphy and Mary Ann Smith); (16) Integrating Reading and Writing in Large-Scale Assessment (Fran Claggett); and (17) Let Them Experiment: Accommodating Diverse Discourse Practices in Large-Scale Writing Assessment (Roxanne Mountford). (NKA)

how teachers evaluate writing: Rearticulating Writing Assessment for Teaching and Learning Brian Huot, 2003-04-01 Brian Huot's aim for this book is both ambitious and provocative. He wants to reorient composition studies' view of writing assessment. To accomplish this, he not only has to inspire the field to perceive assessment--generally not the most appreciated area of study--as deeply significant to theory and pedagogy, he also has to counter some common misconceptions about the history of assessment in writing. In (Re)Articulating Writing Assessment, Huot advocates a new understanding, a more optimistic and productive one than we have seen in composition for a very long time. Assessment, as Huot points out, defines what is valued by a teacher or a society. What isn't valued isn't assessed; it tends to disappear from the curriculum. The dark side of this truth is what many teachers find troubling about large scale assessments, as standardized tests don't grant attention or merit to all they should. Instead, assessment has been used as an interested social mechanism for reinscribing current power relations and class systems.

how teachers evaluate writing: Practical Ideas for Teaching Writing as a Process Carol B. Olson, 1996-02 Contains a collection of specific classroom strategies & suggestions for teaching writing to elementary school students according to an eight-stage process. Specific techniques for teaching each stage of the writing process & descriptions of proven approaches for using these techniques are also included. A wonderful resource, a labor of love from a large & talented group of educators. Had its beginnings in the California Writing Project at the Univ. of California, Irvine. Best Seller! Illustrated.

how teachers evaluate writing: Teaching and Evaluating Writing in the Age of Computers and High-Stakes Testing Carl Whithaus, 2005-04-27 This book takes on a daunting task: How do writing teachers continue to work toward preparing students for academic and real-world communication situations, while faced with the increasing use of standardized high-stakes testing? Teachers need both the technical ability to deal with this reality and the ideological means to critique the information technologies and assessment methods that are transforming the writing classroom. Teaching and Evaluating Writing in the Age of Computers and High-Stakes Testing serves this dual need by offering a theoretical framework, actual case studies, and practical methods for evaluating student writing. By examining issues in writing assessment--ranging from the development of electronic portfolios to the impact of state-wide, standards-based assessment methods on secondary and post-secondary courses--this book discovers four situated techniques of authentic assessment that are already in use at a number of locales throughout the United States. These techniques stress:

*interacting with students as communicators using synchronous and asynchronous environments;
*describing the processes and products of student learning rather than enumerating deficits;
*situating pedagogy and evaluation within systems that incorporate rather than exclude local variables; and *distributing assessment among diverse audiences. By advocating for a flexible system of communication-based assessment in computer-mediated writing instruction, this book validates teachers' and students' experiences with writing and also acknowledges the real-world weight of the new writing components on the SAT and ACT, as well as on state-mandated standardized writing and proficiency exams.

how teachers evaluate writing: Literacy Program Evaluation and Development Initiatives for P-12 Teaching Lawrence, Salika A., 2016-09-01 Teacher leadership is a critical component of effective curriculum assessment and professional development. With teacher-led inquiry being utilized, schools can better improve their learning programs. Literacy Program Evaluation and Development Initiatives for P-12 Teaching is a pivotal resource for the latest research on the benefits of using teacher educators to facilitate the assessment and improvements of school literacy programs. Highlighting a range of relevant topics on professional learning and teacher leadership, this book is ideally designed for school administrators, teachers, researchers, and academics.

how teachers evaluate writing: Teaching Writing in Chinese Speaking Areas Mark Shiu-Kee Shum, De-lu Zhang, 2005-11-23 One of the most civilized nations in history, China has a long-standing writing tradition and many Chinese texts have become world treasures. However, the way the Chinese teach writing in various countries in contemporary times is little known to the outside world, especially in Western countries. Undoubtedly, the Chinese have had an established traditional method of writing instruction. However, recent social and political developments have created the perception amongst both practitioners and researchers of a need for change. Whilst certain socio-political changes, both in Mainland China and in the territories, acted as agents for reform of the teaching of composition, the shape these reforms are taking has been due to many different influences, coming both from inside the countries themselves and from foreign sources. Mainland China, Hong Kong, Taiwan and Singapore have each developed their own approach to the teaching of composition.

how teachers evaluate writing: Evaluating Children's Writing Suzanne Bratcher, Linda Ryan, 2003-09-12 Evaluating Children's Writing: A Handbook of Grading Choices for Classroom Teachers, Second Edition introduces and explains a wide range of specific evaluation strategies used by classroom teachers to arrive at grades and gives explicit instructions for implementing them. Samples of student writing accompany the instructions to illustrate the techniques, and an appendix of additional student writing is provided to allow readers to practice particular evaluation strategies. More than just a catalog of grading options, however, this is a handbook with a point of view. Its purpose is to help teachers become intentional about their grading practices. Along with recipes for grading techniques, it offers a philosophy of evaluating student writing that encourages teachers to put grading into a communication context and to make choices among the many options available by determining the instructional purpose of the assignment and considering the advantages and disadvantages of particular grading strategies. Specific grading techniques are integrated with suggestions about the craft of evaluation--guidelines for instructional objectives, for student audience analysis, and for teacher self-analysis that help define communication contexts. New in the Second Edition: *a new chapter on state standards and assessments; *a reorganization of the chapter on approaches to grading; *additions to the chapter on management systems; *additions to the chapter on teaching yourself to grade; *additions to the annotated bibliography; and *updated references throughout the text.

how teachers evaluate writing: Teaching Writing in English as a Foreign Language Huan Zhao, Lawrence Jun Zhang, 2022-05-30 This book explores teachers' cognitions about the teaching of writing in English as a foreign language (EFL) and their teaching practice, as well as factors influencing the formation and reformation process of their cognition. Taking stock of Bakhtin's dialogism as the theoretical framework, the authors argue that the formation and reformation of teacher cognition is a dialogic process. A systematic analysis of participating teachers' cognition formation and re-formation process suggests the highly individual nature of teachers' cognitions. EFL researchers and teachers, teacher educators, teacher education policymakers, university administrators and EFL textbook writers could draw on the findings of the study to provide better resources to implement the teaching of EFL writing more effectively. The study has adopted a mixed-methods approach, whose quantitative results show the patterns and differences of teacher cognition among teachers of different backgrounds and with different schooling, education and working experiences. The qualitative findings show in detail teachers' cognition formation and reformation processes and the factors contributing to such processes, revealing convergence and divergence of teachers' stated cognitions, with a focus on the discrepancy between teacher cognition and teaching practice. These are useful lenses through which researchers and teachers will find significant implications for offering EFL writing instruction more effectively.

how teachers evaluate writing: Evaluation in Foreign Language Education in the Middle East and North Africa Sahbi Hidri, Christine Coombe, 2016-09-27 This book presents evaluation cases from the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) context, investigating the various facets of evaluation in different parts of the MENA region and beyond. In 19 chapters, it explores cases from Tunisia, Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Sudan, Syria, the UAE, Turkey, Iran and Morocco. The book highlights the impact of evaluation on a range of stakeholders, arguing that it has repercussions at the individual, societal, economic, cultural and political levels, that it also has an ethical dimension, and that it is tailored to people's needs, helping them to remain abreast of the effectiveness and efficiency of programs. Further, the book explores controversial issues concerning different evaluation themes, such as teacher and staff evaluation, assessment practices, text genre analysis evaluation, assessment of productive skills, textbook and ICT evaluation, evaluation of ELT certificates and programs, quality assurance, ESP needs analysis, assessment literacy, and dynamic assessment. It addresses key challenges, such as who the "right people" to implement evaluation are, and the appropriate use of evaluation results to avoid any misuse or harm to any stakeholder. In closing, the book calls for further research venues on the relevance of evaluation, testing and assessment in the MENA context and beyond.

how teachers evaluate writing: Writing Across the Curriculum Beryl Bennett,

Related to how teachers evaluate writing

Teaching Resources & Lesson Plans | TPT WELCOME TO TPT Where extraordinary teachers share their most innovative ideas Explore Now

TeachersPayTeachers - Signin Sign in to access the largest marketplace for PreK-12 resources, powered by a community of educators

Log In | Teachers Pay Teachers Get our weekly newsletter with free resources, updates, and special offers

About TPT On TPT, educators can find endless innovative and inspiring ideas to address every learning moment. For first-year teachers and 20-year veterans alike, TPT has everything educators

All Resources - TPT Browse all resources on Teachers Pay Teachers, a marketplace trusted by millions of teachers for original educational resources

Teaching Resources & Lesson Plans | Teachers Pay Teachers - TPT 4 million free and priced teaching resources created by teachers for instant download including lesson plans, interactive notebooks, unit plans, novel studies, worksheets, printables, quizzes,

TPT TPT is the largest marketplace for PreK-12 resources, powered by a community of educators

Frequently Asked Questions - TeachersPayTeachers Teachers Pay Teachers is an online marketplace where teachers buy and sell original educational materials. More About Us About Who We Are We're Hiring Press Blog Support Help & FAQ

Free Resources - TPT Browse free resources on Teachers Pay Teachers, a marketplace trusted by millions of teachers for original educational resources

Free Printables - TPT Browse free printables on Teachers Pay Teachers, a marketplace trusted by millions of teachers for original educational resources

Teaching Resources & Lesson Plans | TPT WELCOME TO TPT Where extraordinary teachers share their most innovative ideas Explore Now

TeachersPayTeachers - Signin Sign in to access the largest marketplace for PreK-12 resources, powered by a community of educators

Log In | Teachers Pay Teachers Get our weekly newsletter with free resources, updates, and special offers

About TPT On TPT, educators can find endless innovative and inspiring ideas to address every learning moment. For first-year teachers and 20-year veterans alike, TPT has everything educators

All Resources - TPT Browse all resources on Teachers Pay Teachers, a marketplace trusted by millions of teachers for original educational resources

Teaching Resources & Lesson Plans | Teachers Pay Teachers - TPT 4 million free and priced teaching resources created by teachers for instant download including lesson plans, interactive notebooks, unit plans, novel studies, worksheets, printables, quizzes,

TPT TPT is the largest marketplace for PreK-12 resources, powered by a community of educators

Frequently Asked Questions - TeachersPayTeachers Teachers Pay Teachers is an online marketplace where teachers buy and sell original educational materials. More About Us About Who We Are We're Hiring Press Blog Support Help & FAQ

Free Resources - TPT Browse free resources on Teachers Pay Teachers, a marketplace trusted by millions of teachers for original educational resources

Free Printables - TPT Browse free printables on Teachers Pay Teachers, a marketplace trusted by millions of teachers for original educational resources

Teaching Resources & Lesson Plans | TPT WELCOME TO TPT Where extraordinary teachers share their most innovative ideas Explore Now

TeachersPayTeachers - Signin Sign in to access the largest marketplace for PreK-12 resources, powered by a community of educators

Log In | Teachers Pay Teachers Get our weekly newsletter with free resources, updates, and special offers

About TPT On TPT, educators can find endless innovative and inspiring ideas to address every learning moment. For first-year teachers and 20-year veterans alike, TPT has everything educators

All Resources - TPT Browse all resources on Teachers Pay Teachers, a marketplace trusted by millions of teachers for original educational resources

Teaching Resources & Lesson Plans | Teachers Pay Teachers - TPT 4 million free and priced teaching resources created by teachers for instant download including lesson plans, interactive notebooks, unit plans, novel studies, worksheets, printables, quizzes,

TPT TPT is the largest marketplace for PreK-12 resources, powered by a community of educators

Frequently Asked Questions - TeachersPayTeachers Teachers Pay Teachers is an online marketplace where teachers buy and sell original educational materials. More About Us About Who We Are We're Hiring Press Blog Support Help & FAQ

Free Resources - TPT Browse free resources on Teachers Pay Teachers, a marketplace trusted by millions of teachers for original educational resources

Free Printables - TPT Browse free printables on Teachers Pay Teachers, a marketplace trusted by millions of teachers for original educational resources

Teaching Resources & Lesson Plans | TPT WELCOME TO TPT Where extraordinary teachers share their most innovative ideas Explore Now

TeachersPayTeachers - Signin Sign in to access the largest marketplace for PreK-12 resources, powered by a community of educators

Log In | Teachers Pay Teachers Get our weekly newsletter with free resources, updates, and special offers

About TPT On TPT, educators can find endless innovative and inspiring ideas to address every learning moment. For first-year teachers and 20-year veterans alike, TPT has everything educators

All Resources - TPT Browse all resources on Teachers Pay Teachers, a marketplace trusted by millions of teachers for original educational resources

Teaching Resources & Lesson Plans | Teachers Pay Teachers - TPT 4 million free and priced teaching resources created by teachers for instant download including lesson plans, interactive notebooks, unit plans, novel studies, worksheets, printables, quizzes,

TPT TPT is the largest marketplace for PreK-12 resources, powered by a community of educators

Frequently Asked Questions - TeachersPayTeachers Teachers Pay Teachers is an online marketplace where teachers buy and sell original educational materials. More About Us About Who We Are We're Hiring Press Blog Support Help & FAQ

Free Resources - TPT Browse free resources on Teachers Pay Teachers, a marketplace trusted by millions of teachers for original educational resources

Free Printables - TPT Browse free printables on Teachers Pay Teachers, a marketplace trusted by millions of teachers for original educational resources

Related to how teachers evaluate writing

What do teachers want to see in automated writing evaluation systems? (eSchool News5y) Automated writing evaluation (AWE) systems offer a promising approach to relieving the burden of giving formative feedback to students on their writing. These systems employ natural language

What do teachers want to see in automated writing evaluation systems? (eSchool News5y) Automated writing evaluation (AWE) systems offer a promising approach to relieving the burden of giving formative feedback to students on their writing. These systems employ natural language

Houston ISD changes teacher evaluation form again after new changes came into effect (3hon MSN) Houston ISD made yet another change to the rubric used to evaluate how well teachers perform in their classrooms, one of the

Houston ISD changes teacher evaluation form again after new changes came into effect (3hon MSN) Houston ISD made yet another change to the rubric used to evaluate how well teachers perform in their classrooms, one of the

To Evaluate Writing, Go With Your Gut—And Those Of Many Others (Forbes6y) Forbes contributors publish independent expert analyses and insights. Natalie Wexler is an education writer focusing on literacy. A fifth grader takes the New York State English Language Arts exam

To Evaluate Writing, Go With Your Gut—And Those Of Many Others (Forbes6y) Forbes contributors publish independent expert analyses and insights. Natalie Wexler is an education writer focusing on literacy. A fifth grader takes the New York State English Language Arts exam

What Works in Writing Instruction (Education Week11y) The importance of developing strong writing skills seems to be gaining more and more attention almost daily. Employers spend billions remediating writing skills. With the new SAT, college admissions

What Works in Writing Instruction (Education Week11y) The importance of developing strong writing skills seems to be gaining more and more attention almost daily. Employers spend billions remediating writing skills. With the new SAT, college admissions

PROOF POINTS: White and female teachers show racial bias in evaluating second grade writing (The Hechinger Report4y) The Hechinger Report covers one topic: education. Sign up for our newsletters to have stories delivered to your inbox. Consider becoming a member to support our nonprofit journalism. Racial bias in

PROOF POINTS: White and female teachers show racial bias in evaluating second grade writing (The Hechinger Report4y) The Hechinger Report covers one topic: education. Sign up for our newsletters to have stories delivered to your inbox. Consider becoming a member to support our nonprofit journalism. Racial bias in

Why We Can't Farm Out the Teaching of Writing (The Chronicle of Higher Education13y) An assistant professor recently wrote to me with an interesting request: "I would like you to suggest a software package or other applications that could more critically assess formal writing than the Why We Can't Farm Out the Teaching of Writing (The Chronicle of Higher Education13y) An assistant professor recently wrote to me with an interesting request: "I would like you to suggest a software package or other applications that could more critically assess formal writing than the With Larry Ferlazzo (Education Week7y) (This is the last post in a four-part series. You can see Part One here; Part Two here and Part Three here.) The new "question-of-the-week" is: What is the biggest mistake teachers make in writing

With Larry Ferlazzo (Education Week7y) (This is the last post in a four-part series. You can see Part One here; Part Two here and Part Three here.) The new "question-of-the-week" is: What is the biggest mistake teachers make in writing

Should we evaluate teachers outside of the classroom too? (Los Angeles Times13y) Should teachers have the freedom to lead private lives we may not all agree with? And should they be able to post controversial tidbits on social networking sites? Jonathan Turley, a professor of

Should we evaluate teachers outside of the classroom too? (Los Angeles Times13y) Should teachers have the freedom to lead private lives we may not all agree with? And should they be able to post controversial tidbits on social networking sites? Jonathan Turley, a professor of

Back to Home: <https://explore.gcts.edu>